MOTOR VEHICLE LAWS

Of the State of Maine in Effect July 9, 1921

The New Schedule of fees and the form of Application both for Operators and Registration of Vehicles do not become effective until January 1, 1922.

Sec. 70. Every vehicle carrying objects which project more than five feet from the rear shall, during the period of one-half hour after sunset to one-half hour before sunrise, carry a red light at or near the rear end of the objects so projecting, and at all other times such vehicle shall carry a danger signal at or near the end of the object so projecting. Trailers having more than two wheels shall be connected to the towing vehicle or preceding trailer by at least one chain, in addition to the trailer—on a hill—if the hitch bar becomes disconnected, or shall be provided with some other adequate holding device.

Sec. 71. Municipal officers may designate places on any way where in their judgment by reason of cliffs, embankments or other exceptional natural conditions, the meeting of motor vehicles and horses or other animals would be attended with unusual danger, by causing the words "Automobiles go slow" to be conspicuously displayed on signs on each approach to such place not less than one hundred and fifty feet distant therefrom. No motor vehicle shall pass any place so designated at a greater speed than ten miles an hour.

Sec. 72. Whoever operates a motor vehicle upon any way recklessly, so that lives or safety of the public are in danger, or upon a bet, wager or race, or for the purpose of making a record, thereby violating the speed regulations, or whoever goes away without stopping and making himself known after causing injury to any person or property, or uses a motor vehicle without authority from its owner, shall be punished by a fine of not more than fifty dollars, or by imprisonment for a term not exceeding three months, or by both fine and imprisonment; and if any person be convicted the second time for a violation of this section, he shall be punished by a fine of one hundred dollars, or by imprisonment for not more than one year.

Sec. 73. If any motor vehicle is so driven in a reckless manner or by a person apparently under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs, it shall be the duty of every officer who is charged with the enforcement of law and of every citizen, to forthwith report the same to the commission, giving the register number of the vehicle, the state registering the same, and the name and residence of the operator or owner, if known. Upon receipt of such complaint the commission shall forthwith investigate the case and may suspend or revoke the license of such operator, or, if a non-resident, his right to operate in this state, and annul the registration of any vehicle so operated, for such time as it shall deem advisable. No person whose license to operate a motor vehicle has been revoked upon conviction of violating sections seventy-two, seventy-three and seventy-four of this act, shall again be licensed or permitted to operate a motor vehicle in this state for three years; provided, however, that after one year if the commission on petition and after hearing shall determine that public safety will not be endangered by issuing a new license or permit, with or without conditions attached thereto, a new license or permit may then be issued. If any person convicted of any violation of the provisions of this act shall appeal from the judgment and sentence of the trial court, his license and right to operate a motor vehicle in this state shall be suspended during the time his appeal is pending in the appellate court, unless the trial court shall otherwise order, or unless the commission, after a hearing, shall restore the license or permit pending decision on the appeal.

Sec. 74. No person shall operate or attempt to operate a motor vehicle when intoxicated or at all under the influence of intoxicating liquor or drugs. Whoever violates the foregoing provision shall be punished upon conviction by a fine of not less than one hundred dollars nor more than one thousand dollars or by imprisonment for not less than thirty days nor more than one year, or by both fine and imprisonment. The license of any person convicted of violating the provisions of this section shall be immediately revoked by the commission upon receipt of an attested copy of the court records, without further hearing. THE DRIVE FOR ECONOMY

General Charles G. Dawes made such an impression upon Washington when he talked of "hell and Maria" before a Congressional committee, that he virtually swore himself into the leadership of one of the biggest attempts in the reform of Government financial methods that has ever been attempted. Having been appointed as Director of the Budget, and with the backing of President Harding, Mr. Dawes gathered all the executive heads in Washington, including the President and members of the Cabinet, into a conference, and after talking to them for an hour they were all enlisted on an equal footing in the effort that is now under way to place the Government upon a basis of economy and efficiency. The budget system simply stands for better business methods in public accounting. This is important enough in itself, but it is the least of the aims which Mr. Dawes seeks to accomplish. He is the leader in the movement which has put the whole Government on its mettle to secure economy in carrying on the public business. Besides this the Dawes enthusiasm has inspired a new desire for more efficiency in Government. No one has accused Dawes of being an expert in psychology, but he has nevertheless introduced psychological elements into his work, and the budget campaign cannot help but be beneficial to the interests of the country.

THE POWER TO MAKE WAR

After a thorough debate on the entire subject of disarmament the House of Representatives in response to the desire of President Harding, who said, "I am vastly more concerned with the favorable attitude of the Congress on this question than I am as to the form of expressing that attitude," has agreed to Senator Borah's suggestion for disarmament. In the beginning the House was inclined to extend the scope of the Senator's suggestion that Great Britain and Japan be requested "to send representatives to a conference which shall be charged with the duty of promptly entering into an understanding or agreement by which the Naval expenditures and building programs of said governments—the United States, Great Britain, and Japan shall be reduced annually during the next five years to such an extent and upon such terms as may be agreed upon."

Senator Borah has apparently been able to convince Congress that there are only three great powers that are able to institute effective warfare. The balance of the governments of the world have broken themselves in the recent world war. The Senator holds that there is nothing to this disarmament proposition that cannot be settled by the three countries that have been named. After months of debate the House of Representatives has agreed to the Senate resolution—and they cheered loudly when they did it.

SIX GIVEN THE THIRD DEGREE

Tuesday evening, July 12, marked the second impressive gathering since the organization of Subduer Lodge, No. 22, when the third rank was worked on six candidates by the Hamlin Lodge degree team of South Paris. The floor work and rank conferred was not only picturesque but impressive, the members of the team in uniform and each member taking his part of the work in a very able and impressive manner.

At the close of the meeting the candidates and members were invited to the banquet hall where a beautiful baked-bean supper awaited them. Yachtmen from the lodges of nearby towns were present and all agreed with Subduer Lodge that Hamlin Lodge had a degree team that they might well be proud of.

The local committee responsible for the supper was composed of the following: Wesley Wheeler, D. H. Spearin and Elmer Dean, assisted by Mrs. Wheeler, Miss Wheeler, Mrs. Spearin, Miss Spearin and Mrs. Brink. It was estimated that about 200 were present at the tables, which were well arranged for the occasion.

A TRIBUTE TO THE MEMORY OF THE LATE HERMAN L. HORNE

From W. B. Chapman, Conductor of the Maine Music Festival

The sudden death of Herman L. Horne of Norway brings sorrow to a host of friends for not only in his own town but all over the State he was known and beloved. Optimistic, cheerful, with a keen sense of humor, a natural voice of originality in expression, a generous kindly nature and always all a Christian in deed and word, Herman L. Horne was a valued citizen and friend. Maine will miss him from her list of helpful public spirited men.

Personally, I feel most keenly his loss, as no one was more helpful to me in the struggling first years of the Festival. He was always enthusiastic, and with his glorious bass voice sang with his heart and soul the great Oratorios he loved so well. For years he and his talented wife maintained the Church in Norway, as they did also the Choir in their Church. Earth is poorer but Heaven richer in "the passing on" of such a soul. We shall miss him sadly here, in the town, at the Church, at the Festival, in every day life, but the memory of his great heart, his loving kindness to all, will be among our choicest treasures. His life work here is finished, but his life's example will remain and stimulate others to better efforts. The sincere sympathy of all who knew him is extended at this time to the bereaved wife, sister, brothers, and immediate relatives.

GRANGE NEWS

BETHEL GRANGE

Bethel Grange met for its regular meeting July 7. The ladies served supper as usual, consisting of salads, hot rolls, white bread and butter, doughnuts, apple pie, mince pie, frosted cake and lemonade. The Master called to order at 8 o'clock. Five candidates were balloted on. One application was read by the secretary. The lecturer presented the following program: Roll call, everyone responding with the word "Home" in it. A ghost march and drill by six ladies. After the drill the members had the privilege of guessing who the ghosts were, dressed in sheets and masks. Much merriment was caused when the masks were removed to find that one of the ghosts was a man. There were visitors from Newry, West Bethel, Andover and South Paris. The degree work was done by Rev. Mr. Little. The next meeting will be July 21.

NOVELTY IN CHAUTAUQUA PROGRAM

Strickland Gillilan, Sherman Rogers, Arion Entertainers, International Concert Party, Etc., Among Attractions

When Community Chautauqua opens here August 3 you will get your first taste of the new-planned entertainment. That the Community Chautauqua System planned for variety this year, and got it, is shown by a casual glance at the list of talent.

You will note that an extra day has been added to our Chautauqu which increases the program to six days. No charge is made for this addition. When the day falls on Sunday the entire program will be arranged by and in charge of our local Committee. This is but one of the many improvements which Community Chautauquas are introducing as part of their service to towns.

The Syracuse Varsity Male Quartet will introduce this novelty program. These four college boys will sing and play for you the happy college songs which are always so popular. The Varsity is one of the few real quartets on the Chautauqua platform.

The Arion Entertainers are one of the big attractions of the Second day, the other attraction being Sherman Rogers, the "Lumberjack Orator." Here, indeed, is a novelty day. The Arions present a program of songs, music, stories, of cartooning and clay moulding—in fact almost every variety of entertainment. Hear Master Winslow Rouse, the boy soloist of Trinity Church, Boston.

Sherman Rogers is a great speaker and writer on industrial subjects. He is the type of man who says exactly what he thinks and who doesn't waste words in polite phrases. For this reason, he has gained the attention of both capital and labor and has made a great name for himself. You, no doubt, have read some of his articles in the leading newspapers and the magazines of the country.

The Third day brings Brush the Great, a magician extraordinary, with his tricks and illusions, stage settings and novel effects. He will hold your attention and please you as few entertainers can. Both old and young are always delighted with his performances which are as marvellous as they are mystifying.

Appearing on this same day are the New Englanders, a trio of young ladies, presenting a program of songs and music both semi-classic and popular.

Of course you have heard of Strickland Gillilan. He is famous from coast to coast as a writer and lecturer on humorous subjects and is regarded as one of the finest Chautauqua attractions in the country. "Just Between Our selves" is worth the price of a season ticket alone, for Mr. Gillilan can make you smile and think as no other humorist can. He will be here on the Fourth day and with him the International Concert Party. The Internationals are a very high-class musical organization, presenting the masterpieces of music. This quartet represents four distinct nationalities.

"Mother Lode" will be with us on the Fifth day with her wonderful inspirational message, "The Divine Rights of the Child." Chautauqua audiences are always glad to welcome this lady orator, for they know she brings to them a lecture of real worth.

On the Last day Chief Tahan and the Princess Nacome Company will entertain. Chief Tahan will tell you a true life story which rivals the most thrilling adventure tale. His experiences in the West among the Indians have given him a fund of information for his delightful talk, which is entitled "Up from Savagery." Princess Nacome and her company will entertain you with Indian stories, songs, and music together with many popular American songs, played on the piano, violin, lute and saxophone. The Princess, herself, is a remarkable violinist.

When you consider the entertainments and the variety of each program you will readily see that this year's Chautauqua is a decided advance over any of other years.

There is no time like the present, so buy that season ticket now from your local committee. Help them in their work—help the town and help make your Community Chautauqua a success.

BALMY PEACE

"IN THE SYLVAN solitudes," said the wild man of the woods, "a man doesn't see any magazines and doesn't receive any bulletins from the health authorities, so he enjoys a peace that is never known in the busy haunts."

"There a man simply has to subscribe for a lot of magazines, as a matter of self-defense. Canvassers are after him all the time. Some of the canvassers are lone widows with many children to support, and others are energetic young men who are trying to work their way through the veterinary college."

They are deserving people, and you feel it a duty to help them along, so the first thing you know your mail box is jammed full of literature. Having paid for it, you feel that you ought to read it, and your life is ruined thereby.

"When I was young, the magazines tried to entertain people. They had good stories and a poet's corner, and a department devoted to timely jokes, and another to household hints and domestic recipes. There was some sense in reading a magazine then, for it soothed and sustained you. But nowadays the magazine editors consider it their duty to harrow your soul and make you half stand on end like quills upon the porcupine, or words to that effect. They are always viewing with alarm, and trying to convince you that you take your life in your hand every five minutes."

"They have a lot of health specialists writing for them, and these health sharps point out that pretty near everything you eat and drink is a deadly poison. They didn't scare me to any great extent, for I am a most intrepid man, but they soon had my wife so rattled she didn't know whether she was going or coming."

"I always was passionately fond of a good cup of coffee, and my wife could make the best coffee you ever heard of. She went to work at it like a learned apothecary compounding a prescription. There was no guess work about it. She took an honest pride in it, and her coffee was a revelation to every consumer. I used to lie awake at night wishing it was breakfast time, so I could have my morning cup of coffee."

"But one morning when I went to the table the coffee was missing. In its place there was a sickly beverage I had never seen before. I asked an explanation, and my wife said that no more coffee would be made in our house. 'The wonder is,' said she, 'that we still live and move and have our being, for coffee is a rank poison. If you read Dr. Zinkfoogle's article in the Junepollan Magazine, you will see that coffee contains a large percentage of tannin, which is so deadly that if you place a drop on the tongue of an alligator, it will roll over dead.'"

"I told her that I had no alligators on the premises, and consequently could not try the experiment, but I assured her that I didn't care anything about the poison. I wanted my coffee at regular hours. She said I'd have to keep on wanting. She thought too much of me to send me to an untimely grave. And, anyhow, she explained Dr. Zinkfoogle had told how to make a substitute for coffee that was perfectly wholesome. She had followed his instructions, and the result was before me. Perhaps it didn't taste as good as coffee, but it was wholesome. It would fill my veins with red corpuscles and restore hair to my bald head. It was made of marrowfat peas which had been carefully roasted in a hot oven."

"In order to get a cup of coffee after that, I had to make a sneak to the chop-house, and the kind dished up there made me old before my time. My wife cut out all my favorite dishes because Dr. Zinkfoogle or some other magazine writer denounced them, and finally I was living on roasted peas and boiled spinach, and I concluded that if I had to feed like the cows I'd live like them, so I came to the forest fastnesses."

"Marriage Breaker" Busy.
One of the deplorable results of bolshevik misrule in Russia is the installing of a "breaker of marriages" in Petrograd, who is said to be granting more than 600 divorces a week. No investigation is necessary, the only requirement being the signature of the person desiring freedom from marriage.

A Helpful Hint.
"An-pee" growled a hypercritical customer in the rapid fire restaurant. "This confounded piece of meat is so tough I can hardly eat it!"

"Get it down on the floor where you can put your foot on it when you gnaw it," briskly returned Hissles, the waiter. —Kansas City Star.

The Difference.
"A good housewife is very different from a good husbandman."
"How so?"
"She is always sewing tears."

Unless you are particular in your choice, you are not likely to get the best. If we were not so particular about the wheat we buy for we could not give you the quality for which this flour is famous.

Our big mill is located right in the heart of the richest wheat-growing section of the country.

There is so much wheat from which to choose that we can and do select only the very best as good enough for William Tell.

By being equally particular in every manufacturing detail, we know that William Tell is fine and clean and pure.

If You're particular about your baking, just tell your grocer—William Tell.

HER NICE new husband,
STEPPED OUT of the house.
WHISTLING LIKE a bird.
WHICH ALARMED young wife.
ESPECIALLY WHEN,
SHE FOUND she'd picked
THE WRONG package.
AND INSTEAD of oatmeal,
HAD GIVEN him birdseed.
BUT DON'T think from this,
THAT EVERY guy,
YOU HEAR whistling,
HAS NECESSARILY,
BEEN ROBBING the canary.
OTHER THINGS inspire.
THE ALMOST human male,
TO BLOW through his lips.
AND MAKE shrill noises.
A RAISE, for example,
OR A day, pit, whim.
A DOUBLE header is on.

OR AN everyday thing.
LIKE A good drag,
ON ONE of those smoked,
THAT SATISFY.
WHICH CERTAINLY are,
THE REAL birdseed.
FOR MAKING men,
TRILL THEIR pipes for joy,
SO LADIES, if hubby,
GOES AWAY whistling,
YOU NEEDN'T worry.
ALL'S SWELL.

WHEN you say that Chesterfield "satisfy," you're whistling. You know—the instant you light one—that the tobacco in it is of prime selection, both Turkish and Domestic. And the blend—well, you never tasted such smoothness and full-flavored body! No wonder the "satisfy-blend" is kept secret. It can't be copied.

Did you know about the Chesterfield package of 10?

NATURE TELLS YOU

As Many a Bethel Reader Knows Too Well

When the kidneys are weak, Nature tells you about it. The urine is nature's index. Infrequent or too frequent passage. Other disorders suggest kidney illa. Doan's Kidney Pills are for disordered kidneys.

Bethel people testify to their worth. Ask your neighbor.

A. F. Copeland, farmer and hay contractor, Chapman St., Bethel, says: "My kidneys have often given me trouble, especially when traveling on the road selling goods. I blame the change of water and exposure for my trouble. I have been so bad with lumbago, I couldn't get straightened up once I was seated and my kidneys wouldn't act regularly. At times the secretions passed too frequently, and were scanty. I always go to Bosserman's Drug Store and get a box of Doan's Kidney Pills when troubled in this way. I use Doan's until the ailments become corrected. I recommend this remedy to anyone in need of a good kidney medicine."

SYNOPSIS.

CHAPTER I.—Graham Norcross, railroad manager, and his secretary, Jimmie Padden, are marooned at Sand Creek siding with a young lady, Sheila Macrae, and her small cousin, Unseen, they witness a peculiar train holdup, in which a special car is carried off.

CHAPTER II.—Norcross recognizes the car stolen as John Chadwick's, financial magnate, whom he was to meet at Port City. He and Dodds rescue Chadwick. The latter offers Norcross the management of the Pioneer Short Line, which is in the hands of eastern speculators headed by Breckenridge Dunton, president of the line. Norcross, learning that Sheila Macrae is stopping at Port City, accepts.

CHAPTER III.—Dodds overhears conversation between Hatch and Chadwick, in which they admit complicity in Chadwick kidnapping. Their object being to keep Chadwick from attending a meeting of directors to reorganize the Pioneer Short Line, which would jeopardize their interests.

CHAPTER IV.—To curb the monopoly controlled by Hatch and Henckel, the Red Tower corporation, Norcross forms the Citizens Storage and Warehouse company. He begins to manifest a deep interest in Sheila Macrae. Dodds learns that Sheila is married, but living apart from her husband. Norcross does not know this.

CHAPTER V.—Hatch, aware that Dodds has knowledge of his and Henckel's participation in the Chadwick kidnapping, offers him inducements to leave Norcross. Dodds refuses. Leaving the office, he is knocked senseless. Recovering consciousness, he learns that Norcross has disappeared and is believed to have resigned and gone east.

CHAPTER VI.—Dodds connects Norcross' disappearance with machinations of Hatch and Henckel, and on recovering strength sets out to solve the mystery.

CHAPTER VII.—With Kirgan, the round master mechanic, Dodds sets a line on Norcross' disappearance. They follow a clue given them through a missing locomotive.

CHAPTER VIII.—The rescue party finds and releases Norcross from captivity to which he had been lured. Norcross resumes control of the Pioneer Short Line, refusing to give place to man whom Dunton has sent to take charge.

"I fixed this new young man up, right away, for a 'special' of some sort, and the proof that I was right came one afternoon when Ripley dropped in and fell into a chair to fan himself with his straw hat like a man who had just put down a load that he had been carrying about a mile and a half farther than he had bargained to.

"Thank the Lord, the last of those injunction suits is off the docket," he said, drawing a long breath and winking his neat little head at the boss. "I'll say one thing for the Hatch people, Norcross; they're stubborn fighters."

"We'll beat 'em," predicted the boss. "They've got to let go. How about our C. S. & W. friends? Are they still game?"

"Fine!" asserted the lawyer. "The stock is over-subscribed everywhere, now, and C. S. & W. is a going concern. The building boom is on. I venture to say there are over two thousand mechanics at work at the different centers, rushing up the buildings for the new plants, at this moment. You ought to have a monument, Norcross. It's the most original scheme for breaking a monopoly that was ever devised."

The boss was looking out of the window sort of absently, chewing on his cigar, which had gone out.

"Ripley, I wonder what you'd say if I should tell you that the idea is not mine?" he said, after a little pause.

"Not yours?"

"No; it, or at least the germ of it, was given to me by a woman; a woman who knows no more about business details than you do about driving white elephants."

"I'd like to be made acquainted with the lady," said Ripley, with a tired, little smile. "Such gems are too valuable to be wasted on mere lumber yards and fruit packeries and grain elevators and the like."

"You'll meet her some day," laughed the boss, with a sort of happy lilt in his voice that fairly made me sick—knowing what I did, and knowing that he didn't know it. Then he switched the subject abruptly: "About the other matter, Ripley: I know you've been pretty busy, but you've had Tarbell nearly a week. What have you found out?"

Ripley briefed the general situation as it stood on the night of the engine theft in a few terse sentences. Aside from the fight on Red Tower Consolidated, the new railroad policies were threatening to upset all the time-honored political traditions of the machine-governed state. An election was approaching, and the railroad vote and influence must be whipped into line. As the grafters viewed it, the threatened revolution was a one-man government, and if that man could be removed the danger would vanish.

The execution details had been turned over to Clannahan, the political boss of Port City.

The plot itself was simple. At a certain hour, of a given night, an anonymous letter was to be sent to Mr. Norcross, telling him that a gang of noted train robbers was stealing an engine from the Port City yard for the purpose of running down the line and wrecking the Fast Mail, which often carried a bullion express-car. If the boss should fall for it—as he did, when the time came—and go in person to stop the raid, he was to be overpowered and spirited away, a forged letter purporting to be a notice of his resignation was to be left for Mr. Van Brit, and a fake telegram, making the same announcement, was to be sent to President Dunton in New York. Nothing was left indefinite but the choosing of the night.

"I suppose Hatch was to give the word," said the boss, who had been listening soberly while the lawyer talked.

"That is the inference. Hatch probably gave the word after his talk with you, but the time was made even more propitious by the arrival of the two telegrams; the one from Mr. Chadwick, and the one from Mr. Dunton, both of which they doubtless intercepted by means of the tapped wires."

Mr. Norcross looked up quickly. "Ripley, did Dunton know what was going to be done to me?"

"Oh, I think not. It wasn't at all necessary that he should be taken in on it. He has been opposing your policies all along, and had just sent you a pretty savage call-down. He didn't want you in the first place, and he has been anxious to get rid of you ever since. The plotters knew very well what he would do if he should get a wire which purported to be your resignation. He would appoint another man, quick, and all they would have to do would be to make sure that you were well off stage, and would stay off until the other man could take hold."

"It worked out like a charm," admitted the boss, with a wry smile. "I haven't been talking much about the details, partly because I wanted to find out if this young fellow, Tarbell, was as good as the major's recommendation of him, and partly because I'm honestly ashamed, Ripley. Any man of my age and experience, who would swallow bait, hook, and line as I did that night deserves to get all that is coming to him."

"You can tell me now, can't you?" queried the attorney.

"Oh, yes; you have it all—or practically all. I fell for the anonymous letter about the Mail hold-up, and while I don't 'rattle' very easily, ordinarily, that was one time when I lost my head, just for the moment. The obvious thing to do—if any attention whatever was to be paid to the anonymous warning—was to telephone the police and the round-house. I did neither because I thought it might be too slow."

"So you made a straight shoot for the scene of action?"

"I did; down the back streets and across the lower end of the plaza. As it appeared—or rather as it was made to appear—I was barely in time. There were men at the engine, and when I sprinted across the yard they were ready to move it out to the main line. I yelled at them and ran in. Three of them tackled me the moment I came within reach. I got one of the three on the point of the jaw, and they had to leave him behind; but there were enough more of them. Before I fairly realized what was happening, they had me trussed up like a Christmas turkey, and loaded into the cab of the engine. From that on, it was all plain sailing."

"They Had Me Trussed Up Like a Christmas Turkey."

"Then they took you to the old lumber camp?"

"As fast as the engine could be made to turn her wheels. Arroyo has no night operator, and when we sneaked through the Santa yard and past the station, the operator there was asleep. I saw him, with his head in the crook of his arm, at the telegraph table in the bay window as we passed."

"We ran out to the Timber Mountain 'Y,' and from that on up the old saw-mill line. The rail connections were all in place, and I knew from this that preparations had been made beforehand. They wouldn't tell me anything except that I was to be locked up for a few days."

"You knew what that meant?"

"Perfectly. My drop-out would be made to look as if I had jumped the job, and Dunton would appoint a new man. After that, I could come back, if I wanted to. Whatever I might do or try to do would cut no figure, and no explanation I could make would be believed. I had most obligingly dug my own official grave, and there could be no resurrection."

"What then?" pressed Ripley, keenly interested, as anybody could see. "When they took the clothes-line from my arms there was another scrap. It didn't do any good. They got the door shut on me and got it locked. After that, for four solid days, Ripley, I was made to realize how little it takes to hold a man. I had my pocket-knife, but I couldn't whittle my way out. The floor punch-ions were spiked down, and I couldn't dig out. They had taken all my matches, and I couldn't burn the place. I tried the stick-rubbing, and all those things you read about: they're fakes; I couldn't get even the smell of smoke."

"The chimney?"

"There wasn't any. They had heated the place, when it was a commissary, with a stove, and the pipe hole through the ceiling had a piece of sheet iron nailed over it. And I couldn't get to the roof at all. They had me."

Ripley nodded and said, snappy-like: "Well, we've got them now—any time you give the word. Tarbell has a pinch on one of the Clannahan men and he will turn state's evidence. We can railroad every one of those fellows who carried you off."

"And the men higher up?" queried the boss.

"No; not yet."

"Then we'll drop it right where it is. I don't want the hired tools; no one of them, unless you can get the devil that crippled Jimmie Dodds, here."

They went on, talking about my turn-up. Listening in, I learned for the first time just how it had been done. Tarbell, through his hold upon the wretched Clannahan striker, had got the details at second-hand. A lead had been taken from a power wire at the corner of the street and hooked over the outer door-knob. And inside I had been given a sheet of copper to stand on for a good "ground," the copper itself being wired to a water pipe running up through the hall. Tarbell had afterward proved up on all this, it seemed finding the insulated wire and the copper sheet with its connections hidden in a small rubbish closet under the hall stairs, just where a fellow in a hurry might chuck them.

"Tarbell is a striking success," Mr. Norcross put in, along at the end of things. "We'll keep him on with us, Ripley."

Past this there was a little more talk about the C. S. & W. deal, and about what the Hatch crowd would be likely to try next; and when it was finished, and Ripley was reaching for his hat, the boss said: "There is no change in the orders; we've got 'em going now, and we'll keep 'em going. Drive it, Ripley; drive it for every ounce there is in you. Never mind the election talk or the stock quotations. This railroad is going to be honest, if it never earns another pet dollar. We'll win."

"It's beginning to look a little that way, now," the lawyer admitted, with his hand on the door knob. "Just the same, Norcross, there is safety in numbers, and our numbers are precisely one; one man"—holding up a single finger. "As before, the pyramid is standing on its head—and you are the head. For God's sake, be careful!"

It was late in the afternoon when Ripley made his visit, and pretty soon after he went away the boss and I closed up our end of the shop and left May pecking away at his typewriter on a lot of routine stuff. I don't know what made me do it, but as I was passing Fred's desk on the way out, stringing along behind the boss, I stopped and jerked open one of the drawers. I knew beforehand what was in the drawer, and pointed to it—a new .38 automatic. Fred nodded, and I slipped the gun into my left-hand pocket, wondering as I did it, if I could make out to hit the broad side of a barn, shooting with that hand, if I had to.

A half-minute later I had caught up with Mr. Norcross, and together we left the building and went up to the Bullard for dinner.

CHAPTER IX

In the Coal Yard

I know, just as well as could be—without being able to prove it—that we were shadowed on the trip up from the railroad building to the hotel, and it made me nervous. There could be only one reason now for any such dogging of the boss. The grafters were not trying to find out what he was doing; they didn't need to, because he was advertising his doings—or Juneman was—in the newspapers. What they were trying to do was to catch him off his guard and do him up—this time to stay done up.

It was safe to assume that they wouldn't fumble the ball a second time. Mr. Ripley had stood the thing fairly on its feet when he said that our campaign was purely a one-man proposition, so far as it had yet gone. People who had met the boss and had done business with him liked him; but the old-time prejudice against the railroad was so wide-spread and so bitter that it couldn't be overcome all at once. Juneman, our publicity man, was doing his best, but as yet we had no party following in the state at large which would stand by us, and see that we got things done.

of their tire equipments by multiplying tires by five to each motor vehicle. This takes in the "spare." Those who buy "more tires" are not apt to have very much sympathy with the "poor, suffering rubber industry." The indications are that the rubber industry has not always "suffered," even though the largest consumers of rubber of the United States now claim that they are up against conditions that threaten them, as well as the rubber planters, to a dismal future. Sympathy wanes by reason of the fact that the rubber planters live in faraway countries, including Java, Mexico, Central and South America. When the price of rubber at one time stepped up to 75 cents a pound the production of rubber began to boom. In 1911, 75,000 tons of rubber was produced. In 1920 this figure had jumped to 400,000 tons, and until recently this production was no more than that required by the world's demands. When the war was at its height rubber producers had an idea that they were going to put pneumatic tires under the whole of creation, and the producers ran a world race with Cuban sugar planters. But in both cases the results have been disastrous, as every family can at least afford sugar, and nearly every automobile owned can keep a "spare" tire.

TAXES WILL NOT BE REDUCED

A leading writer summarizes the disappointment that is bound to reach the country regarding the extent of tax reductions, in a personal manner, by saying that "President Harding, down in his heart, realizes that the country is in for a season of partial disappointment over the impossibility of the realization of the full measure of hope entertained for an immediate sweeping reduction in taxation." The article goes on to say that the President is not downhearted, since "he believes that the country will be reasonable, after the first pang of disappointment and will look the situation and the facts in the face."

There are the best reasons the world has ever known why taxes should be sky-high. Millions of people cannot desert their industrial occupations and go gunning for one another, and expect to evade paying the piper for his strident tune. The American spirit demanded that the United States should go to the limit with the war, and now the country has no real warrant for feeling resentful when called upon to meet the obligations that that war brought. The budget system is one of the devices that is intended to help bring about economy, and it will doubtless bear results, but it will not affect any reduction in war debts. There must be paid over a long series of years. And while they are being paid, and as the country is constantly moving on to a more expensive basis, the conditions do not promise a reduction in the bills of the tax office.

WEST PARIS

An interesting event occurred in West Paris, July 6 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Brock, when at high noon their youngest daughter, Grace Mary, was united in marriage to Clarence Elmon Whitney, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Roscoe G. Whitney of Farmington. The ceremony was performed beneath an arch of evergreen. The bride wore a traveling suit of silver tone brown and carried bridal roses. The bridegroom was also dressed in brown. Ethel Brock, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and Everett Whitney, brother of the groom, acted as best man. Those present at the ceremony were the parents of the contracting parties, also the wife of the best man. The double ring service was used. Rev. H. F. Aldrich, pastor of the Federated church at West Paris, was the officiating clergyman. After lunch the bridal couple left for a short wedding trip. They will be at home after August 1st at 165, Madison Avenue, Skowhegan, Maine.

Thursday evening, June 30th, about seventy-five of the friends of Grace Brock gave her a shower at her home in West Paris. The gifts consisted of many beautiful pieces of silver, china, etc., which were greatly appreciated by the bride-to-be and which will always be a pleasant reminder of her many friends in West Paris. Refreshments of ice cream, cake, doughnuts and crackers were served.

Mrs. Mary Stevens was severely injured Thursday evening when crossing the road from her home to Oscar Penbody's. An auto came along and the driver at first thought she was going to wait until he passed, but after some hesitation on the part of both she stepped in front of the car and was knocked down, the car passing over her between the wheels.
